Andy Davis

Dubbed the “best surf artist of our generation,” Andy grew up watching the action sports industry bubble up in neighborhoods around him. Always daydreaming and drawing, he was obsessed with Southern California surf culture. He spent afternoons skateboarding around the Vans Shoe Company and talking surf history with friends. His authentic passion for surfing began to take shape in his colorful art...a fresh way to look at the energy of surfing while paying homage to classic surf iconography of the past. His legendary surf artwork has shown in galleries in all corners of the world, from Bali to Rome, from New York to Laguna Beach.

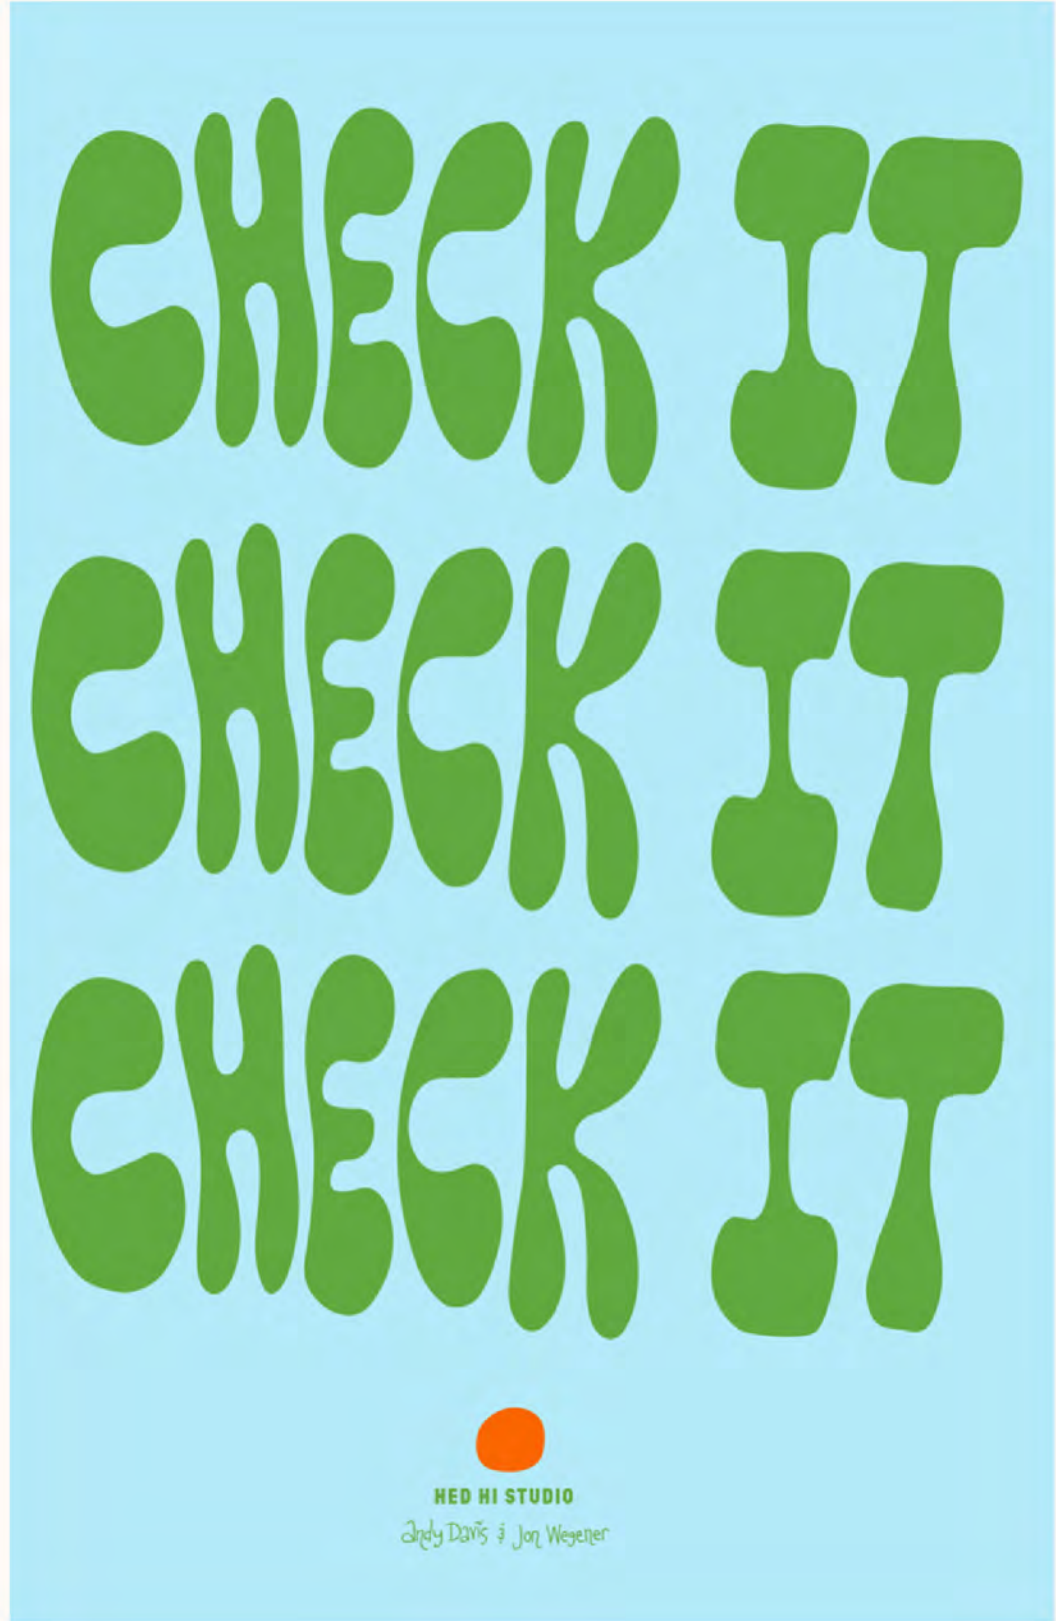

"Check It" includes original paintings by Andy as well as one of a kind surfboard boards, shaped by collaborating artist, Jon Wegener, with bold graphics painted by Andy.

Jon Wegener

Jon Wegener grew up surfing and shaping in Southern California. He has been shaping since 1987 and has dreamed of doing nothing else except surfing and shaping ever since. After his college years in San Diego, he returned to Hermosa Beach, CA and began to work on his passion full-time. In addition to starting Wegener Surfboards he has also shaped for a number of other veteran shapers including Hap Jacobs, and Bing Surfboards. In 2010 Jon moved to Encinitas, CA. As a board maker Jon has always tried to find the right board for the right conditions. Jon loves to make and ride a huge variety of surfboards.

For "Check It" John shaped Paipos and Alaia wooden surfboards and a limited number of fiberglass boards, all of which Andy Davis left his mark on. Jon hand made all of the beautiful wood frames for Andy's collection of paintings.
